Policy on Alcoholic Beverages
Department of Biochemistry and Molecular Biology

Adopted November 13, 1991

The use of alcoholic beverages in the laboratory or office is highly inappropriate. Even the occasional consumption of alcoholic beverages in such places is viewed as "drinking on the job". Therefore, the consumption of alcoholic beverages is limited to functions that are held only in the seminar room or the department conference rooms. The faculty member that sponsors such an event and provides the alcohol shall assume responsibility that all University and State regulations regarding the use of alcohol are followed. In addition, any unconsumed alcoholic beverages should be removed from the building at the conclusion of the event and not stored in the building.
